EDMONTON BULLETIN, MARCH 6th, 1893.

COAL.

Dan Macre arrived from the Big Arch coal seam on Thursday with samples of coal to form part of the Northwest exhibit at the World's fair. He brought one large piece about two feet square and a sack full of smaller pieces. The coal is of much finer texture than that mined at Edmonton, more nearly resembling anthracite in appearance. It is very bright and glossy in color and has no tendency to slack on exposure to the air. In the coal mined at Edmonton there is a first tendency to check horizontally, while in that brought by Mr. Macrae and indeed in all the coal from far up the river the tendency to check perpendicularly. The sample brought by Mr. Macrae was from a seam eighty feet thick, part of which is on fire. Although the coal is in such immense beds that the loss of a few million tons cannot make much difference, yet it seems like criminal waste to allow these fine seams to burn. The Dominion government which owns the coal should take means to put out these fires and to as far as possible prevent the immense loss to the material resources of the country which must result if the fires are not put out. Besides these burning coal seams are liable or indeed almost certain to fire the grass and timber in the surrounding country if the spring should be dry, and thereby cause still more incalculable loss.

BUTTER.

An article in the Arbroath, (Scotland) Guide handed the BULLETIN by Douglas Petrie of Edmonton, mentions the fact that a steamer recently left Melbourne, Australia, for London with $35,000 worth of butter on board and that during the present season the United Kingdom will receive from Australia and New Zealand something like 7,200,000 pounds of butter. This immense trade has been established partly through the introduction of "cool rooms" on the steamers plying between Australia and Great Britain, and partly by the adoption of the factory system in Australia and New Zealand. In New Zealand the government encourages the establishment of creameries by giving information regarding them. In Victoria, Australia, not only is this done, but an export inspection is provided so that no butter shall be exported which does not come up to certain standard, and also an export bonus which amounts to more than the carriage on the butter. Australian competition has reduced the winter price of butter in Britain not less than two pence a pound. The lesson of all this for farmers in the Edmonton district particularly is that if it pays to make butter on the scanty grass and in the hot climate of Australia for export fully half around the world and across the tropic zone to Britain, there need be no fear as to the profitable nature of the industry in this district of luxuriant grass, abundant water, and bracing air, and with much less than half the distance to the common market, and that all the way through the northern part of the temperate zone. And yet Australia sells more butter in Great Britain than Canada, simply because the Australian is factory made while the Canadian is hand made. The fact is that the very great advantages which Canada possesses for butter production are what have so far stood in the way of the increase of her export trade in butter. Almost throughout Canada and certainly in the Edmonton district any farmer's wife can make good butter, which in Australia surrounding circumstances do not permit. Consequently Australia is compelled to adopt the factory system and does so, making it a thorough success, while Canada not being compelled to do so does not, and is being left in the race. This matter cannot be presented to the farming community in too strong a light, especially in this section of country, which is better suited for dairying than any other part of the Dominion and with all its advantages stands higher in dairying than in anything else.

THE COLD SNAP.

The following despatch dated Montreal, February 11th, appears in a Philadelphia paper: "For two weeks past intense cold and high winds have prevailed throughout the Northwest, and old timers say they remember nothing appalling it. In intense drifts obstructed road traffic. At many points in Assiniboia the mercury was fifty degrees below, and at many more and through the northern country sixty degrees below is reported. Many people are missing and the mounted police are everywhere for them. A coal famine exists all along the line of the C. P. R. Crises and other establishments are compelled to close down for lack of fuel. The facts have been, however, suppressed so much as possible on account of the injury it is feared it would do to the country as a field for immigration. On account of the roads being blocked farmers are unable to market their grain and not a bushel is coming out of the Northwest. The Walrood ranch and ranchers on the Bow river have lost thousands of head of cattle and the sheep ranches at Cypress hills are almost depopulated.

This despatch shows that in these days of newspaper enterprise it is impossible to suppress news and that the attempt to suppress by those whose business it is to know and publish the facts leads to exaggeration by those who do not know those facts and whose business it is to make them appear in the worst possible light. Throughout the cold snap of the latter end of January and the beginning of February the BULLETIN stated the plain facts of the case as it stood here and although the weather was unprecedentedly cold there was no ground in this district for such a report as that circulated broadcast from Montreal. The difficulty has been that other papers in the Territories did not do the same and consequently when they attempt to contradict the distorted statement above mentioned, they will be at once met with the argument that as they did not tell the truth before they are not to be believed now. As far as the Edmonton district was concerned there was no obstruction to railroad traffic. The train has never been delayed a minute on the hundred miles between Red Deer and Edmonton since the beginning of winter, by either snow or cold, nor was it last winter. No person has been missing in this district, nor was any person even severely frost bitten during the severe weather, although many we slightly frost bitten. There was no coal or wood famine here, as of course there could not be owing to the abundance of both coal and wood. No industry of any kind was suspended. Produce was marketed in town almost as usual, and not a single head of stock has been lost so far as heard from in the district. With the exception of the two weeks mentioned during all January and February the weather was mild and most delightful, as it is now.

In view of the fact that New Brunswick has no separate schools the following despatch reads strangely: "The resolutions concerning the grievance of the Protestant minority at Bathurst, which were the cause of an exciting debate in the Grand Orange lodge last night, have been withdrawn and a new set substituted authorizing a petition from all parts of the province to be prepared and sent to the government asking for redress of the Orangemen's alleged grievance; failing this to take the matter before the courts. These resolutions were carried. Some money has already been subscribed to take the case before the superior courts." It seems to make considerable difference which side is in the minority.

Prince Albert Times: "For the benefit of some farmers residing here and to all those intending to reside here, we wish to state that home cattle do not hibernate and if those who have lost a few had in the summer put up shelter and cut a little more of the hay that so abundantly grows, these losses which have occurred during the last cold weather would have been averted."

McCarthy will ask in parliament for the value of raw material and the output, according to the last census, of the cotton industries of the country; also of the wool, cloth-making industries and wall paper establishments, the number of employees therein, and the value of raw material used in foundries, and machine working industries as well.

The nuns of the Sacred Heart, Calgary, purpose erecting forthwith, a new stone convent, at a cost of $6,000. The building will include a commodious school room and will be fitted with all modern conveniences.

D'Alton McCarthy will visit the Northwest next summer to talk on tariff reform if engagements permit. He has already arranged a tour of the maritime provinces and the eastern townships.

John W. Mackay was shot on February 24th, in San Francisco, California, by a man named Repper, who afterwards shot himself. Mackay is not much the worse, but Repper's wound is fatal.

Prince Albert Times, February 22: Three weeks and three days since we had a mail but we have great expectations in the near future.

The license committee also presented draft of agreement between W. Humberstone and the town.

Gallagher—Sanderson—moved that the report of the license committee be adopted, and that the draft of agreement regarding ferries be accepted, and that the mayor and clerk be authorized to sign the agreement.

By-law No. 42 was read a 1st time.

Sanderson—Strang—moved that by-law 43,
respecting the owners and workers of coal mines be read three times.

Strang read a letter from Thos. Anderson, regarding public health.

W. Humberstone submitted the names of
Jas. Ross and John Cameron as his sureties.
They were accepted on motion of Strang and McLeod.

Gallagher—McDougall—moved that the license fee for a hawker, pedlar or transient trader be $50 a week, and each additional day $5.

Strang—Goodridge—moved that the names of the various sureties of officers of the municipality be referred to the chairman of the finance committee, and if approved by him that the bonds be completed.

By-law 41 was read a third time.

The finance committee recommended the adoption of the auditor's report as read with the following alteration, namely that in place of 20 per cent being deducted for depreciation of assets that only ten per cent be deducted. Also
"As the clerk was suspended until after the auditor's report was received, and the same having been received and reported upon, and also being satisfactory, your committee have much pleasure in recommending the clerk's reinstatement."
